Chip, Kristine and Alanna:

As I mentioned to Chip and Alanna last week on our call, the LWG has developed a set of talking point/messages about the early deliverables. We are not expecting these documents to be out there for the general public but we know that they are technically publicly available. Therefore, we want to make sure we have good descriptive language to explain them as well as all the caveats about how they are preliminary and subject to change. We hope you find these descriptions helpful as well.

Best Regards,

Barbara

Subject: January 15, 2012 Draft FS Key Work Product Deliverables

Chip, Kristine,

Per your letter to the LWG dated October 7, 2011, and consistent with the LWG's response to that letter dated October 13, 2011, we are providing electronic copies of the Draft FS Key Work Products. The LWG reminds EPA that the early work products are draft and preliminary and subject to change. Therefore, it is important that EPA not reach conclusions based upon these early work products in isolation but rather that EPA base its review and evaluation of the FS in the context of the draft report as a whole, consistent with FS guidance.

Anchor QEA has set up a secured web site using our SharePoint where EPA can log in and download the files.

 The documents will be available on this site for 7 days to allow you and your team to retrieve them. After 7 days the LWG will remove the documents from this site.

Please contact Jim McKenna if you have any questions.

Thank you,
 Jen Woronets ☺
